

March 2023 – The Blue Ball, Asheridge

A smaller group than usual braved the rainy conditions. Following all the recent wet weather, we had to negotiate some muddy paths as the walk took us up towards Bellingdon, passing the cottage where D.H. Lawrence wrote The Rainbow just over 100 years ago.

No rainbow on this occasion though! Having walked along White Hawridge Bottom, we passed through Captain's Wood and returned along the top of the valley towards Asheridge. Lunch at The Blue Ball was plentiful and good value.
